THE EXPOSITION—The grandest success of the Age—Greatest in Louisville—A Grand Reception—Success—Business—Society—Life—Politics—Clerical—Scandal—Etc.

LOCAL BREVIETIES.

Mr. S. E. Owens is our authorized agent at Crab Orchard.

Jack Frost made his appearance on Saturday morning last.

The weather is very dry yet. Will it never rain here any more?

Don't forget to attend James McCormick's sale of valuable real estate at Hustonville to-day.

Col. T. P. Hill is building a new L. & N. brick dwelling in the east suburbs of Louisville.

J. N. Craig is erecting a handsome frame dwelling on his lot opposite the Methodist church.

Buy your tickets in the great Library drawing. Today is positively the last day they can be procured!

If your property is not insured in a thoroughly reliable company call on the agent of the Royal, immediately.

The gold market within a few days past has shown a strong upward tendency, and the premium has advanced.

The Louisville Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will meet at Lebanon, Kentucky, the 2d of October.

Todays judges, zealous municipal officers make things exceedingly "dry" in Somerset.

The manly laws are such that a wealthy man may as well try to "eat soup with a comb and knife" as to procure a drink of intoxicating liquors in Somerset.

Ben Douglas (m. e.) insulted a gentleman on the road to church the other night. Next day the white man armed himself with a half bat and sent Ben to church in a hurry.

Col. T. M. Biards laid open our table a basket of sweet potatoes of the brilliant and Burmuda varieties, which we are compelled to acknowledge the finest of the season.

A banker told us the other day, in response to the question—"why is small change so scarce?" that it was a sure sign that money was becoming more abundant in the country than preceding.

Circuit Court will convene in Pulaski county next Monday, and in Wayne three weeks from that time, and at Stanford the 3d Monday in October, and the county court the day succeeding.

Rev. G. O. Barnes, by invitation, preached at Lancaster last Lord's day, in the Baptist church, to a very large crowd of delighted auditors. The sermon said to have been one of the finest ever delivered in the town, and the people were delighted. He has been urged to come again, by many who had the pleasure of hearing him.

G. M. Givens, a well known lawyer, has returned and is now ready to attend to the wants of his patrons. Call at his gallery and see the life-like pictures of Greely, Brown, Grant and Wilson.

We notice that many of our farmers are laying in their winter supply of coal, who have seen too much of the sort coming from the fertile and beautiful valleys of Wayne to doubt for a moment that the show would be an excellent one. The people down there do not know how else to treat them than cleverly. If a stranger in our State, who has heard of Kentucky hospitality, and wants to see evidence of it, let him travel a fair in Wayne county. We will in all cases stop your paper where the time for which you subscriber expires. Therefore, please authorize me to continue it if you desire to stand in supporting this institution. Our terms are invariably in advance.

Pleasure Renew.

Those of our subscribers who find a cross mark after their names are notified that their time expires with that number, and are earnestly requested to renew. We thank many of our friends for prompt renewals; and, so far none have refused to continue our paper. We will in all cases stop your paper where the time for which you subscriber expires. Therefore, please authorize me to continue it if you desire to stand in supporting this institution. Our terms are invariably in advance.

Wayne County Fair.

If a man has never fully enjoyed himself at a fair, he should go to Wayne county the next time one is held there. We did not desist appointed at the fine show of stock, for we had seen too much of the sort coming from the fertile and beautiful valleys of Wayne to doubt for a moment that the show would be an excellent one. The people down there do not know how else to treat them than cleverly.

Rivalry.

You may remember that over two years ago Ben Mickey was convicted in the Oldham county Circuit Court of the murder of a slave in La Grange. He was sent to the jail here for safe keeping, and a few weeks after, in company with Smith, another convicted murderer, awaiting a second trial, and a score of other criminals, broke jail and fled. None were recaptured. In July last S. I. C. attracted like the moth to the flame, returned to this vicinity, after long and weary traveling, and was captured in Indiana. He was taken to Oldham county yesterday, and there sentenced to be hung on the 23d of November next. He expects to be hanged on the 23d of November next. He seems indifferent to his fate, and deserves the fate that awaits him.

FROM LOUISVILLE.

HUSTONVILLE, Ky., September, 17th, 1872.
Correspondence Interior Journal:

The Exposition—the grandest success of the Age—Greatest in Louisville—A Grand Reception—Success—Business—Society—Scandal—Life—Politics—Clerical—Scandal—Etc.

Correspondence Interior Journal:

Louisville presents an animated appearance indeed. Her hotels are thronged, her streets are crowded, and her grand Exposition continues to attract from seven to twelve thousand people daily. It is one of the grandest successes of the age, and Louisville very naturally feels proud of the work of her active citizens. The Directors of the Exposition are young men, and the success of this enterprise is due largely to the introduction of young blood into public masters. Every Kentuckian naturally feels proud of the metropolis of the State, when he enters the Exposition building, and many of the people in the extreme limits of the State have returned home for the avowed purpose of bringing their families back to Louisville, to enjoy one of the greatest enterprises of the age.

Horace Greeley to VISIT THE EXPOSITION.

We are to have another sensation here Sunday. Horace Greeley, the old philosopher, whose white hat and coat are familiar to the world—this grand old citizen—has accepted an invitation from the Directors of the Exposition and will visit the enterprise Saturday evening on a special train from Cincinnati. He will probably deliver an address on industrial and agricultural pursuits on Sunday evening. He will remain over Sunday, the guest of the city, and again visit the Exposition on Monday afternoon and night. Thousands of people will naturally desire to see Horace Greeley, and will come from every point contiguous to Louisville. His reception will be an immense ovation here.

DEATH-DOMES.
